People will do anything to see a free show — even if it is a bad one. When the news got around that a comedy show would be presented at our local cinema by the P. and U. Bird Seed Company, we all rushed to see it. We had to queue for hours to get in and ^[1] there must have been several hundred people present just before the show began.

1. ... there must have been several ...

➤ Use “must be” to express a prediction of sth. in the present; use “must have been” to express a prediction of sth. in the past.

E.g. (1) The company's profit must be very promising this year.

(2) Something must have fallen and blocked the door.

(3) You must be out of your mind if you think I am going to lend you money.

Unfortunately, the show was one of the ^[2] dullest we have ever seen. Those who failed to get in need not have felt disappointed, as many of the artists who should have appeared did not come. The only funny things we heard that evening came from the advertiser (报幕员) at the beginning of the program. He was obviously very nervous and for some minutes stood awkwardly before the microphone.

2. Those ... need not have felt disappointed.

➤ need not have done: the action is done, but it was unnecessary and even a waste of time.

E.g. (1) You needn't have worried about her.

(2) You needn't have washed all the dishes.

(3) Jack needn't have taken all the responsibilities.

As soon as he opened his mouth, everyone burst out laughing. ^[3] We all know what the poor man should have said, but what he actually said was: “This is the Poo and Ee Seed Bird Company. Good ladies, evening and gentlemen!”

3. ... the poor man should have said.

➤ should have done: used to express that sb. was supposed to do sth. but actually didn't do

E.g. (1) You should have finished your homework.
(but you didn't finish)

(2) Sam should have been more careful. (but he didn't)

(3) He should have made reservation three days ago. (but he didn't make)
