Dentists always ask questions when it is impossible for you to answer. My dentist had just pulled out one of my teeth and had told me to rest ^{[1] for some time} for a while. I tried to say something, but my mouth was full of cotton wool. He knew I collected match boxes and asked me whether my collection was growing. He then ^{[2] In response to these questions} asked me how my brother was and whether I liked my new job in London. In answer to these questions I ^{作为对这些问题的答复} either nodded or made strange noises. Meanwhile, my tongue was busy ^{find sth. after searching} searching out the hole where the ^{[3] 搜寻} tooth had been. I suddenly felt very worried, but could not say anything. When the dentist at last removed the cotton wool from my mouth, I was able to tell him that he had pulled out the wrong tooth.
